

Every year, around 1.500 participants take advantage of the advanced training courses offered by the Military Academy.

Within the Military Academy, the Institute for Officer Advanced Training is the training provider of career courses and seminars for career, reserve and civilians of the Austrian Armed Forces. More than 100 training events are offered.

The main focus of training is on further training courses for career and reserve officers.

For civil servants of the department, basic training is provided with a focus on administrative service.

Special training courses (military and security policy, peer, team trainer) and specialised courses (personnel deployment preparation, project management, military expert) round off the Institute's training and further training offer.

All the groups of people listed above as well as members of partners of the Austrian Armed Forces have the opportunity to expand their competence profile in a wide range of personality-building seminars.

The Institute for Advanced Officers Training cooperates closely with the National Defence Academy and the Army NCO Academy, conducts joint exercises with their courses and cooperates with numerous national and international educational institutions in the civilian and military sector within the framework of exchange programmes for teaching staff.
