On 20th December, 1966, the "Feldjägerkaserne" was renamed "Daun Kaserne" (Daun Barracks), after the Theresan Military Academy's first Commandant, Field Marshall Leopold Count Daun.

Since 1967 the building has been used by the School Battalion that is organic to the Theresan Military Academy. The western wing is still used by public schools.

HEATING PLANT

At the beginning of the Second World War, a heating plant was installed southwest of the Daun

Barracks. It provides warm water for washing and heating. The heating plant used brown coal at first, but then changed to coke. Starting in the middle of the sixties, oil was used and since the end of the seventies, natural gas has been used.

Since 2019 most of the buildings at the campus are linked with the district heating system operated by the EVN-company. This will be the same for the Daun Barracks end of 2020. Then, the heating plant will be closed after 80 years in use.

The power station is still in use today. Owned and operated by the local power supplier EVN, it has delivered electricity to the public net for more than 20 years. The generator has a power of 480 kW.

After the Second World War, the federal estate "Foals' Farm" was established. The stables were expanded and modern houses for employees were built. The federal estate also kept pigs and carried out park and forest work on the property of the Academy.

Nowadays, the pig farm is closed, the fields are rented out and the area of the "Foals' Farm" belong to the Municipality of Wiener Neustadt. In the next years, the "Foals' Farm" should become a meeting point for recreation, gardening, arts and events.

The Swimming Pool in the eastern part of the park is used for swimming instruction. It got originally its water from the Kehrbach stream, but since 1971 the water has come from the municipality and been pumped through a gravel filter and chemically prepared. The pre-warmed water in the pool makes swimming instruction possible from May through the middle of September. The pool is open to the public.
